

FROM SAMOA AND HAWAII

STRONG OPPOSITION TO THE KING SET UP BY THE GERMANS AT APIA.

Hawaiians on the Verge of Another Revolution, Owing to the Curtailment of Kalakaua's Powers—Collision Between American Sailors and a German.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—The steamer Mariposa, which arrived yesterday, brought advices from Samoa to November 14. The Apia correspondent of the Sydney Morning Herald states that the Samoans are becoming more keenly alive to the fact that the party represented by the new king, Tamasese, has been made use of merely to serve the policy of the Germans. The whole plan of foreign interference as represented by the German plan of operations, is steadily raising a strong opposition.

Within a fortnight after the assembling of parliament, there were increased rumors of dissatisfaction with the chief. The meeting of the legislature did not include all the most influential men of the islands, and it is understood that numbers of those who attended it have seceded from the government.

The arrival of the United States man-of-war Adams October 19, was the occasion of much rejoicing to many in Apia. Men were not permitted to leave the ship because of the presence of the German guards and sentries along the beach and the possibility of a conflict taking place. Soon after the Adams' arrival a number of natives under Asi, the fighting chief, visited the vessel, and, after inspection, the Samoans assembled on the upper deck and held a dance. The correspondent states that the Germans expressed their annoyance at this circumstance, and the natives have been virtually prohibited from giving any more such entertainments. A collision is reported to have taken place between American sailors and a German on the street. An officer jostled a sailor, who knocked him down.

Honolulu advices are that after King Kalakaua had vetoed the bill to abolish the office of governor, and also another measure, providing for the performance of such duties as pertained to that office, a call of the house was ordered to consider the veto, and fiery speeches were made by the minister of interior, Thurston, Gen. Ashford and others. The legislature declined to submit the question of modified right of veto to the supreme court, and the king wrote asking the court's advice. Meanwhile the legislature adopted resolutions denying the king's right to veto. The supreme court invited all members of the bar to confer with it on the subject, and the court listened with closed doors to arguments of twenty-two attorneys.

The impression was at first conveyed that the supreme court was unanimous in sustaining the veto, in consequence of which inflammatory articles appeared in several papers, but a week ago the king received an intimation that the court could not agree.

A special correspondent, writing from Honolulu, says: "The people here are virtually on the eve of another revolution. The king, in exercising his veto power, intends to stand on his constitutional rights until a judicial decision is rendered. The legislature will contest his action, and the natives are becoming excited. They find themselves ignored and treated with contempt; the king insulted; his rights, as understood by them, ignored or denied. The native paper, it is said, is inciting natives to rise in arms, if necessary, and assert their right to a voice in the management of their own affairs. It only needs a spark to set the country in a blaze."

THE BIG RAFT.

A United States Steamship Reports that It has been Broken Up.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Dec. 27.—The United States steamship enterprise which was sent out by the navy department to search for the abandoned timber raft, has returned to this port. Commander McCalla, reports that on Friday he came upon the remnants of the raft 135 miles off Nantucket Shoals. The raft had broken up, and the sea was covered up with the separated logs. He sailed through the floating timber all Friday and Saturday night, but could not find enough of the raft holding together to tow into port. He thinks there is no danger to navigation from the logs, as they will soon drift apart and out of the frequented track of vessels.

The logs were found 135 miles southeast by south of the Shoals, and are not in the route of the Transatlantic steamers. The revenue cutter Grant has also arrived here. She did not succeed in finding any part of the lost timber.

Don't Believe It.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Mr. Leary, owner of the timber which composed the great raft, does not believe that the raft has entirely broken up. He considers such a thing almost impossible, and thinks that a large portion of the raft will yet be found held together by the chains with which it was interwoven while being built.

Spinners to Stay Out.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 27.—The striking spinners at the Stafford mills held a meeting and unanimously decided to stay out. They claim that they were cheated out of from seventy-five cents to one dollar per week by wrong sizing, and cannot get the injustice remedied. Senator Howard, who is present, will interview the mill owners to-day, and will try to effect some settlement.

Sought Relief in Laudanum.

FINDLAY, O., Dec. 27.—John Russell, a prominent farmer of Jackson Township, this county, attempted suicide this afternoon by taking laudanum, and it was only by heroic work on the part of his physician and family that his life was saved. Russell had been drinking hard for the past ten days, and, in trying to sober up, became so despondent that he resorted to suicide as a relief.

Woman Fatally Burned.

WATERBURY, Ct., Dec. 27.—Mrs. Patrick Dowling, of Bishop street, was fatally burned Saturday night, her clothes catching fire from the explosion of a lamp she was carrying. She was alone at the time, and ran into the yard. Before assistance reached her she was so badly burned that after lingering several hours she died.

New York's Labor Union.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—At yesterday's meeting of the Central Labor union, the threatened revival of the tenement house cigar-making system was discussed. Delegate Haller, of Cigarmakers' union No. 10, declared that if workingmen in all branches of industry had properly supported the cigar-makers' union label, the attempt to restore the infamous system would never have been made. Delegate Jablonowky, of the same union, said the cigar-makers of New York were on the eve of a general strike of enormous proportions. Other cigar-makers present concurred in this statement, and the delegate from Union 144 said several firms had told their men that the tenement house system would be in force by January 8. The matter was referred to the arbitration committee, with instructions to try its best to prevent the bosses from executing that threat.
